

EVENING BULLETIN.

DAILY, EXCEPT SUNDAY.
ROSSER & MCCARTHY,
Proprietors.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 27, 1891.

It is reported from Louisville that the Farmers' Alliance will start union stores in the principal cities of the State. "Grange" stores were started not many years ago, and where are they now?

The Courier Journal devotes a good deal of space every Saturday to that Stuckenberg "stigmata" fake. It stated last week that the doctors were still investigating the matter, but were not ready to make a report. We are anxious to see what any reputable physician says about the C-J's latest sensation.

That report sent out from Indianapolis that Judge Gresham's friends had joined the Harrison throng and that everything would be smooth sailing in Indiana for the President in the approaching fight turns out to be untrue. Instead of having smooth sailing in his own State, indications are that the President will have a rough time of it.

Wells, the Alaskan explorer, went down to San Bernardino, Cal., and investigated the Temescal tin mines. He writes that they have so far produced but twenty-five tons of tin. That Republican U. S. Marshal must have been "fibbing" when he telegraphed such glowing accounts of this new industry to Ohio a few days ago, and told of its wonderful output. His story was almost as bad as that Piqua tin-plate "fake."

AGONY UNTOLD.

Sad Fate of a Man Who Was Buried Before He Was Dead.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 27.—A special to The Times from Erie, Pa., says: Two weeks ago farmer George Heidecker, of Green township, apparently died very suddenly of what was supposed to have been heart failure. The remains were buried four days later temporarily from St. John's Lutheran church of this city, and temporarily interred in a neighbor's lot in the Erie cemetery, pending the purchase of one by his family.

The transfer was made yesterday, and when the remains were exhumed, the casket was opened at the request of his family and a horrifying spectacle was presented. The body had turned around, lying on its face, and it and the interior of the casket bore traces of a terrible struggle with death in its most awful shape. The distorted and blood-covered features bore evidence of the horrible agony endured. The clothing about the head and neck had been torn into shreds, as was likewise the lining of the coffin. Bloody marks of finger-nails on the face, throat and neck told of the awful despair of the doomed man, who tore his own flesh in his terrible anguish. Several fingers had been entirely bitten off, and the hands torn with the teeth until they scarcely resembled those of a human being.

Don't Use Big Words.

(New York World.)

There is a sign in front of a cigar store on lower Wall street which reads: "Don't Use Big Words." In promulgating esoteric cogitations or articulating superficial sentimentalities and philosophical or psychological observations, beware of platitudinous ponderosity. Let your statements possess a clarified conciseness, compacted comprehensiveness, consistent consistency and a concentrated cogency. Eschew all conglomerations of flaccid garrulity, jejune babblement and asinine affectation. Let your extemporaneous descantings and unpremeditated expatiations have intelligibility and venomous vivacity with rhodomontade or thrausical bombast; sedulously avoid all polysyllabic profundity, peitaceous vavacuity, ventriloquial verbosity and vandeloxent rapidity; shun double entendres, prurient jocosity and pestiferous profanity, whether obscure or apparent. In other words, talk plainly, sensibly and truthfully.

Some Things to Try.

(Good Housekeeping.)

Try cranberries for malaria.
Try a sun-bath for rheumatism.
Try ginger ale for stomach cramps.
Try clam broth for a weak stomach.
Try a wet towel at the back of the neck when sleepless.
Try swallowing saliva when troubled with a sour stomach.
Try buttermilk for removal of freckles, tan and butternut stains.
Try hard cider—a wineglass three times a day—for ague and rheumatism.
Try a hot, dry flannel over the seat of neuralgic pains, and renew it frequently.

CONSOLIDATION.

This City and Chester Should Decide the Question Before January, '92.

Provisions of the Act of the Last General Assembly on the Subject.

The act authorizing the consolidation of Chester and Maysville was passed by the General Assembly at its last session. It was approved May 18, 1890. As the question of consolidating the two corporations has been discussed considerably of late, the act is here given in full:

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky: § 1. That the Board of Councilmen of the city of Maysville, and Town Council of the town of Chester, in Mason County, be, and they are hereby, authorized, each in its organized capacity, to pass ordinances preparatory to the consolidation of the two corporations into one, under the charter and laws and ordinances of the city of Maysville, the town of Chester to be known as the Sixth ward of the city of Maysville; the said ordinances to set forth the plan of consolidation, and be submitted to a vote of the legal voters of each corporation, giving at least ten days' notice in one or more newspapers of Maysville, and by written or printed notices thereof stuck up at the places of voting in each corporation, and in such other public places as may be deemed necessary, of the time, place and purpose of such elections; the result thereof to be made and certified by the officers holding the same to the councils of each corporation at the first regular or called meeting thereafter.

§ 2. That should a majority of the legal voters in each corporation vote in favor of the consolidation, the fact shall be duly entered on the records of each corporation, and then, by proper ordinances, the town of Chester shall be merged into and form part of the city of Maysville, to be known as the Sixth ward; and the Councilmen therefrom shall thereafter be elected at the same time and for the same terms as the other Councilmen for the city of Maysville; three Councilmen of Chester, in office at the time of consolidation, to be selected by lot out of the six, to serve as Councilmen of said city from the Sixth ward, until the first regular election after the expiration of their respective terms, and until a successor is elected and qualified. Should the proposition fail to carry on the first submission, it may again be submitted to a vote of the legal voters in the same manner as at first.

§ 3. That should the consolidation of the two corporations be consummated, as herein provided, then, thereafter, the charter and all the laws and ordinances of the city of Maysville shall be in full force and effect in said Sixth ward of the city, and the charter and laws and ordinances of the town of Chester, from that time forward, shall cease and be of no force and effect, except as the same may apply to actions of the past.

§ 4. That this act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

The first section, it is seen, specifies that the ordinances submitting the question to the voters shall "set forth the plan of consolidation." When East Maysville was taken into the corporation and made the Fifth ward, it was a part of the contract that the citizens of that ward should pay no part of any debt the city owed at the time of the consolidation. There was a similar provision when the lower part of the city was taken in. All such questions as these can be settled, as the act specifies, in the plan of consolidating Chester.

The Legislature will meet the latter part of December. If the two corporations are ever to be consolidated it should be done at once, and before the Legislature convenes.

The laws governing the cities under the new Constitution will be formulated and enacted by the General Assembly at the coming session.

OUR NEIGHBORS.

SARDIS.

Mr. J. D. Dye and lady, of Maysville, and Miss Effie Hanford, of Ashland, are the guests of Judge and Mrs. G. W. Dye, and will remain until after the return of Mr. and Mrs. Grigby from the East.

J. Frank Dye, of Newport, was a guest at the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Dye's wedding. He said it was a rare sight to see so many of the Kentucky beauties under one roof. The visiting brides and brides-elect in the gathering attracted much observation.

We attended the Shorthorn cattle sale at Thorn-dalla, near Mayslick, October 20th. A number of well-bred mares and fillies were also sold. In consequence of the shortness of the grass and water supplies, prices prevailing were not as good as Mr. A. P. Gooding expected, but he let everything go that was offered. Poby Porter, of Fleming, auctioneer; 12 o'clock luncheon spread of beef and mutton sandwiches and pickles, with an appetizing wash of jenneting cider and Shorthorn milk. The crowd dispersed wishing their generous host better luck at his next annual sale.

The funeral services at the home of Mrs. Eliza Owens, over the remains of her late mistress, were conducted by Elders Degman and Hall of the Church of the Disciples, Friday, October 23rd, at 11 o'clock. Elder T. P. Degman read the 9th Psalm and officiated as officiator, and sung a suitable hymn. The funeral address was by Elder W. W. Hall, and was a fitting tribute to the good mother, the kind neighbor, the liberal and genial hostess, the Christian woman, greatly beloved and respected. By her request, her daughters arranged her burial robes and her sons and grandsons were her pall-bearers. With the praise of good men and women resting on her memory, she made her final pillow beneath the green turf of her own loved home—in the little family burial plot—by the side of her late husband, overlooking the old homestead, near Germantown.

In act second, scene first at "Sunnyside," the bride's home, in the presence of a bevy of lovely girls, all eligible for the nuptial vows. Wednesday evening, on the eve of her departure, Mrs. Grigby mounted a chair and whirling her bridal bouquet aloft threw it to the ceiling of her parlor, saying: "Look out, girls, the lucky catcher will be the next bride." All were eager and jumped toward the falling prize, when lo, and behold the minister's daughter, Miss Effie Hanford, was the lucky catcher. She was congratulated. Let's see how the superstition pans out. Less than a year ago Miss Carrie Dye was the much-envied bride-catcher at the Sult-Higher wedding at Fort Carbon, Pa., and now of this day we behold her in all the glorious beauty of a bride, in all its enchantment, eye, in all its happiness, "a spirit she and joy her name."

The Hall-Degman revival meeting with the Christian Church at Sardis, in our own merits, whenever the interest subsides it will close. A number of additions up to Sunday night, crowded houses all the time, the male element being in the majority. Dr. Hall is a preacher of scholastic precision, and pain the whole thing in a nutshell. "God loves the whole world and we love God, (or ought to) because He first loved us." This is the truth—the gospel—and from this luminous point he radiates in irresistible logic and splendid rhetoric, making his position so clear that the way-faring man, though a simpleton, need not err therein. Every argument is well put, his recent discoveries well digested, in every part there is consistency, reason, truth and simplicity. The whole series of sermons should be taken in to fully understand his fog-clearing revelations. For fear of doing him injustice we will not attempt to quote him. Elder Degman's singing and exhortations open and close the meetings in the happiest manner. Our organists have been Mrs. J. W. Hunter, of Blue Licks, and Misses Wells and Wheatley, of Sardis. Rev. Dr. Hanford, Revs. Wightman and Jolly have assisted in prayer, song and exhortation, thus complimenting the chief speaker and edifying the people.
